Enthusiasm High At Friends Banquet

BY
EVERETT NEWSWANGER

LANCASTER — Enthusiasm was high at the Friends of Agriculture Land Preservation Banquet here Thursday evening right after the favorable yes vote on the ballot referendum. More than 1,000,000 Pennsylvanians (as Allen Musselman, executive director, phrased it) confirmed the rightness of farmland preservation. And they did it according to Musselman with a significant public investment to protect the common wealth represented by our rich agricultural land resources.

James Jolly, president of Friends, said that agriculture and ruralism has been largely responsible for Lancaster County's attractiveness, uniqueness and solid character. Jolly called attention to the $700 million farm industry and the $345 million tourist industry. "This is a pleasant place to live, and a special place to visit," Jolly said. "Let Lancaster County be Lancaster County. We are at the place where the availability of water and sewer invites development. But the more development

House Subcommittee Holds Hearing

BY KARL BERGER

The whole herd buyout program may have been successful in temporarily reducing surplus milk production and government costs, but it has failed to invalidate the grim arithmetic that will push milk prices lower if government purchases of surplus dairy stocks exceed 5 billion pounds next year.

That was the underlying message at a field hearing by the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy and Poultry held Nov. 2 in Westminster, Md.

The hearing was intended to be a retrospective on the buyout program, whose "active period" -- the 18 months in which participants had to slaughter or export all their dairy animals — came to a close Aug. 31. But many of the 16 invited witnesses who testified coupled praise for the program with pleas that the government not resort to future price cuts as a means of holding down production.

"We strongly believe that further reductions in the milk price support will cripple the dairy industry on the East Coast," said Alan Brauer, a Rocky Ridge, Md., dairy farmer who serves as master of the Maryland State Grange.

Legislation in the 1985 farm bill that authorized the dairy termination program (its moniker in official circles) also gave Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng the authority to reduce the support price 50 cents Jan. 1 if U.S. Department of Agriculture officials estimate the government's purchase of surplus dairy products in 1988 will exceed 5 billion pounds on a milk equivalent basis.

Although many forecasters have said ongoing production and consumption trends will make this estimate a close call on one or the other side of the 5-billion-pound "trigger level," upswings in milk output since the end of the buyout appear to have swung the majority of predictions to the high side — a development noted by Dr. Paul Hand, the general manager of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, in his testimony.

Accordingly, Hand asked the subcommittee to support legislation that would "avoid or delay the implementation of the Jan. 1 50-cent per hundredweight cut in the dairy support price."

Walter Martz, a Frederick, Md., dairy farmer representing the National Milk Producers Federation, a major lobbyist for the dairy industry, also made an argument against further price cuts.

"We do harbor a great deal of trepidation over the possibility of

Berks Co. Farm-City Banquet Held

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Berks Co. Correspondent

READING — A record crowd of over 400 farm and city folk gathered on Monday evening this past week to celebrate the fourth anniversary of Berks County's efforts to promote agriculture and also a mutual understanding of two very different lifestyles. The Fourth Annual Berks County Farm-City Banquet was held at the Sheraton Berkshire, Reading. Sponsored by the Berks County Chamber of Commerce Agri-Business Committee and the Berks County Farm-City Council, the event marks the opening of Farm-City Week in the county and features an exchange of workdays between farmers and businessmen as well as several days of farm tours when county farmers open their doors to city neighbors.

The Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture and Honorary Chairman of the 1987 Farm-City Week Observance, Boyd Wolff, was on hand to open the program.

"We all need each other," he greeted the diverse crowd of city dignitaries and rural officials. "We suffer or profit together," Wolff went on to say.

His comments also included a reminder about the upcoming election and the important issue of sav-

32 Years Old This Week

The first issue of Lancaster Farming was published 32 years ago this week. Created to be devoted to the interests of the farmer, that first issue covered the farm news of Lancaster County. But over the years, the growth has been evident.

Now with more than 150,000 readers in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Delaware and surrounding states, Lancaster Farming has become the largest agricultural weekly in the east and has gained a national reputation for coverage of farm news and responsible advertising. And Lancaster Farming continues to grow.

A Good Year For Lancaster Holstein Club

BY PAT PURCELL

LANCASTER — Bill Nichol, Executive Secretary of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association liked what he saw at the annual Lancaster County Holstein Club Banquet at the Willow Valley Conference Center Thursday night. What he saw was a lot of young faces, young members.

"This is a young group and I think that's great," said Nichol to the Lancaster County Holstein Club. Nichol complemented the Lancaster County club, which is the largest in the state, on its membership and involvement in the statewide Holstein association.

The Pennsylvania State Holstein Association will be celebrating its 75th anniversary in February of 1988. The celebration will be held at the Willow Valley Con-

ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures closed mixed to mostly higher in quiet trading with late support stemming from buying linked to a lack of pressure from the outside markets. The trade was allowed to focus on fundamentals today as the Dow stabilized & foreign currencies were less volatile. Rumors that the Soviet Union may be interested in a purchase of U.S. corn were linked to talk that current corn prices are near levels at which they made their last purchase. Further support came from ideas that Mexico would tender next week. Generic premiums are stable with bids ranging from 105 to 106%.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybean futures prices settled higher this afternoon on buying linked to talk of renewed Soviet interest in soymeal. Stability in the outside markets lent further support and permitted beans to maintain early advances. Light country movement, firmer Gulf bids and strong cash markets underpinned futures as farmer selling at recent lower levels halted. Ideas that the market was due for a technical correction because of oversold conditions stirred up some buying early in the session. November closed 3-3/4 cents higher at $5.29 while the July option closed 5-3/4 cents higher at $5.47.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures settled higher supported late in the session by rumors that the CCC may delay its wheat auction scheduled to begin Friday. A denial after the close was issued along with further news that the delegation from India had been forced to postpone their November trip to the U.S. due to red tape problems in India. Continued concern for the fungus-infected hard red wheat crop lent support to the deferred prices. The CCC wheat catalog was issued this morning and had little impact as most of the contents had already been factored into the trade. December closed 1-3/4 cents higher at $2.84 after posting a low midday through the sessionof $2.80.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Live cattle futures today settled higher, but below session highs with support stemming from ideas that packers were short bought and in need of supplies. Ideas that tight

Alfalfa's Triple Crown.

Emerald. Maxim. Funk's G-2852. These hardy alfalfas from Hoffman will place you in the winner's circle with improved yields, exceptional stand longevity, and broad-based disease protection.

Emerald's the yield leader from start-to-finish. It has consistently bested Hoffman trials, while producing 5½ percent better than average yields in New York and Pennsylvania state trials.

Maxim's a sure bet for exceptional stand longevity. And its two-year production average of 9.6 tons/acre will give you front-running yields.

Funk's G-2852 tops the field with some of the best disease resistance available. Backed by years of research, this newcomer has shown annual yield advantages of ½ ton/acre.

When you're looking for a winning alfalfa yield, call your local Hoffman seed representative. Or call Hoffman Seeds direct for more information about Alfalfa's Triple Crown.

Ask the Old Farmer: Some 70 plus years ago my mother used to bake huckleberry pies — delicious! Now we have blueberries — not to compare with our old huckleberries What happened? A R Mingo Junction, Ohio

There are three varieties of huckleberries Most common are swamp huckleberries best known as blueberries The seeds are small Black huckleberries come later in the season and the flavor is out of this world but the seeds are large and have a peculiar taste Dangleberries come latest have longer stems and are also blue

OPINION

Which Accident Has Your Number On It?

It's so simple. Just touch the starter terminals and you don't have to climb back up on the tractor. Maybe you're just working on it... maybe you want to save a little time. No big deal. Right?

Sure! No big deal, unless you forgot this is a recipe for death. Picture the situation again; you're standing in front of a tire that measures, say, five feet high. It's on the business end of a ppower train that may produce hundreds of horsepower, enough to pull a moldboard plow through the earth. You're maybe two feet away from it when the engine fires. The tractor cranks, no movement, the engine starts, then it leaps ahead. Your body is the only thing in its way.

Now, which would you prefer to save, your time or your life? Simple question, yet each year many farmers fail the quiz. They're not youngsters who just started last week, either. No, they're people who've been on tractors for years. Oh, sure, they've all had some close calls — they can tell you about them. But they always came through — maybe until this time.

Some accidents, you squeak through. Some are minor and require only first aid. Other may require professional medical attention. Yet, many bypass start injuries result in the victim's death... a high price to pay.

Remember the times you got by — like the scrape with the rusty nail; or even working around moving equipment with the shields off. It turned out OK, but what could have happened? And now as you stand in front of that big wheel and reach out with your screwdriver, is this the accident that has YOUR number on it?

We work with our machines so much and so long, they become part of our lives. The more familiar we are with machines, often times the less fear we have. We forget how big they are and how lethal they can be. We're with them all the time and we think we're friends, but the fact is, they really don't care. If we give them a chance, they cankill us.

So next time you may be tempted to stand in front of that big wheel and grab the screwdriver and touch those terminals, listed to that inner voice that yells, "No"! Pay attention! If you don't, you may be wasting a lot more than time.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Appreciate Farm-City Week

Each farmer is a very important person. While we have more farmers than ever before, the growing population demands more food. Never have so many persons been so dependent on so few.

Farm-City Week is being observed November 20 through 27 to bring a better understanding of problems existing between the rural and urban segments of our society. Some people may think that agriculture is a diminishing industry, but this is not true. There are fewer farmers but each farmer is now producing enough food to feed 116 people, 80 in the United States and 36 overseas. In Russia that ratio is one to ten.

Approximately 15 to 17 million U.S. jobs, and about 25 percent of our economy is based on agriculture. We need to maintain a strong agriculture.

To Exercise Dairy Cows

I know that many of our dairy farmers keep their milking cows confined to the stall barns much of the time. This is easy to do when you are short of labor during the winter months. In order to have a healthy herd, the cows should be allowed outside to exercise daily unless severe weather conditions exist. The exercise will not only keep their feet and legs in better condition, but will permit the cows in heat to be detected; this is often a problem when cows are kept confined too much of the time.

If the herd is turned out for 15 to 30 minutes each day, the time involved will be very worthwhile. You'll find very few days when the weather will interfere.

To Mulch Strawberries

Winter injury has been a problem in strawberries for a number of years. Crown injury can be reduced by applying mulch to protect them for the winter. The best time for application is from mid-November to mid-December. The exact date depends on weather conditions. But a good rule of thumb is to apply mulch when the temperature begins to stay around 20 to 25 degrees F. If it drops to 15 degrees or lower, unprotected strawberry crowns could be injured. In any case it's a good idea to mulch the plants after they have been exposed to a few good freezes. Mulching is a very good practice to insure a better crop next summer.

To Adopt Winter Driving Habits

The hazards of winter driving are many, and drivers should change their habits when roads become icy or snow covered. Most importantly, be patient and reduce your speed to allow more time for braking the car or truck. Winter or all season tires should be mounted soon to give extra protection. Batteries should also be checked and kept in top condition. We must be aware that cold weather puts extra stress on all parts of the car. Always be alert to recognize road conditions and drive accordingly.

FARM FORUM OUR READERS WRITE

Editor:

Now is the time for all dairy farmers to act. For too long we have been (and are) efficient experts in the field of production, with absolutely no thought or concern about marketing.

Today we are the victims of our own single-mindedness. We set helplessly by and bemoan our fate. We allow the politicians to treat the dairy surplus as a "national problem."

The very future of the dairy industry of the Eastern U.S. is in our hands—yours and mine. If you like having your future determined by others—continue sitting and moaning. A few of us in Northern New York have had it. We hope you will join us.

We organized as the Atlantic States Dairy Farmers and all 20 states we speak as one. Never in the history of dairy have we been able to do this. Now that we are down and badly bruised, we MUST act. The consequences of not acting are all too familiar.

The plan of action we have devised after consulting with our representative to the house and with Senator Leahy, chairman of the Senate Ag Committee, and others astate politically is this:

Goal 1 - Stop the 50 cent deduction slated for January 1, or as much of it as possible. And at the same time plant the seed, logically, that this "surplus" is an area or regional problem. Also we feel we must hammer on the fact we, you and I, of the Atlantic Region are responsible producers producing a product for a market in our own area. This campaign will continue through most of November. We have been told by many in the known politically that we must FLOOD the desks of our congressional people with letters to get their attention. The budget is everything—that's OK, but don't penalize us for the errors of others, we are saying.

Goal 2 - will be more long ranged. That is to have a dairy bill with regional or area support pricing that adds to the areas that are producing responsible amounts of milk and lower support pricing

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

SEEING THE FACE OF GOD

November 8, 1987

Background Scripture: Genesis 32:3; 33:1-11.

Jacob named the place "Peniel," which means "the face of God." For it was here at the ford of the Jabbok River that Jacob had experienced a life-changing experience with God. Wrestling all night with a mysterious and unknown "man," Jacob later concluded that it was God himself whom he had encountered at that lonely place.

What bewildered Jacob was that he was still alive to contemplate what had happened, for he had always been led to believe that, if he saw God face to face, he would die. But he hadn't died; he was very much alive.

Who was that man with whom he wrestled: God, a messenger from God, or, as some commentators have suggested, himself? We don't know and it really doesn't matter, because Jacob was convinced that in some way he had been in the presence of God. And, instead of being dead, as he expected, he was alive as never before in his life.

A CHANGED MAN

Another question over which some have argued is whether it was this experience at Peniel that changed Jacob, or was it simply a culmination of the change that had already been taking place? I believe the Peniel experience may have put the finishing touches on Jacob's change, but he had been in a process of change ever since he first left home. The dream which we call "Jacob's ladder," his experiences with Laban in Haran, his obedience to God's promise, "Return to your country and to your kindred, and I will do you good" (32:9) — all of this was part of a gradual, but certain change from Jacob the Supplanter to Israel the man of God.

MY BROTHER, ESAU

In deciding to return to his home and his brother Esau, Jacob showed faith, courage and contrition. To be sure, he was fearful that his brother would seek to do him harm, but it is evident that Jacob realizes how wrong he was and wants to make amends.

One cannot help thinking that Esau must also have changed during these twenty years. Despite what Jacob had done to him, he was willing to forgive and forget. He could rightly regard Jacob as his enemy; instead, he calls him, "my brother" (33:9).

Jacob had had a number of encounters with God and at Peniel had even caught a glimpse of what he decided was God's face. But he was to see God's face again and this time it would be the clearest image of all. Looking at Esau, his reconciled brother, he said: "truly to see your face is like seeing the face of God."

The ones that pass the test.

It's rare to find a hybrid in the 114 day maturity range that yields as well as 3475. In fact, it even outyields many hybrids of later maturity. But yields aren't the only reason to plant 3475. It also offers excellent tolerance to drought, resists leaf diseases like Northern Leaf Blight and Eyespot, and produces strong stalks and sturdy roots. First introduced in 1984, 3475's acceptance has been overwhelming. Plant some and see why.

This hybrid has proven itself as the yield leader for its maturity. In this area, 3352 holds a significant yield advantage against competitive hybrids. Now, that kind of performance speaks for itself. But besides yields, 3352 has very good emergence and early vigor along with excellent stay green and leaf disease resistance against Northern and Southern Leaf Blights, Eyespot and Gray Leafspot. This hybrid is going to surprise a lot of folks.

3295 New!

When put to the test, this new hybrid outyields the competition. By 7.8 bushels per acre in 676 side-by-side yield checks to be specific. And that's just over the last year. Very good emergence, early vigor, large ears and tall plants are just a few of the hardy agronomic traits of 3295. It even has adequate resistance to most common diseases.

supplies of market-ready cattle could strengthen the cash market surfaced early and boosted prices, but when the fed trade did not develop as anticipated a slippage in prices occurred. Retail beef demand is still a main concern especially after yesterday's light movement. Feeders settled higher boosted by ideas that the cash index could soon begin to reverse declines made in the last few days.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash - sideways to higher futures-steady to higher

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hog futures closed mixed after gains made early in the session were reversed by selling tied to profit taking. Support most of the day came from the recovery of pork product prices yesterday and steady to higher values today. Further gains were pared by steady to lower cash hog prices at the terminal markets and ideas that recent heavy runs have packers caught up on their inventories.

ing farmland. "Now we have the opportunity to save farmland in Pennsylvania," he concluded.

The evening was also highlighted by the presentation of the state farm-city plaque by Dalton Paul, president, State Farm-City Council. Presented to Stephen Burkholder, president, Berks County Farm-City Council, the award represented another year of praiseworthy achievement of the county in bringing about a better understanding of rural issues to city residents through county wide promotion efforts, publicity, and educational festivities.

The group public relations award was presented to the Berks County Chamber of Commerce by William Hughes, Meridian Bank. Anthony Grim, aside of Hughes at podium, received the award for his staff for their efforts to organize city- and county-wide events to promote agriculture and the use of funds to further this cause.

Public Realtions in Agriculture Awards were also presented. Jack Gounder, a well known radio personality in Berks County who also served as Master of Ceremonies at many agricultural events throughout his career, was awarded the individual award.

The Public Relations award presented to a group went to the Berks County Chamber of Commerce, headed by Anthony Grim. The award was presented by Willilam Hughes, Meridian Bank. The Chamber of Commerce was praised for their efforts to promote agriculture in the city and their appropriation of funds towards that promotion.

Slide presentations by the farmer-businessmen exchange persons rounded out the evening. Each individual who shared part of his workday with a rural or city neighbor gave a brief presentation. Participants included President Judge Forrest Schaffer who shared his workday and also spent a day on the farm with Henry Frecon, a fruit farmer and partner in Frecon Orchards, Boyertown. Raymond Croft, accountant and board chairman of the Berks County Chamber of Commerce and Tim Kissling, Robesonia, a dairy farmer, also shared workdays. Dr. Susan Probst, Gynecologist and Obstetrics, Reading Hospital, shared workdays with sue Hollowbush, sheep producer with a herd of corriedales on her 60 acre farm near Oley.

The festivities concluded with prizes awarded to the top two individuals from the city and country who placed the highest in the many contests which began the evening. Contests included pork product identification, wool identification, plant origins and seed identifications. Contests and the meal and hors d'oeuvres were sponsored by Berks County agricultural businesses and individuals.

New Jersey Farm Bureau Sponsors Two Awards Programs

TRENTON, N.J. — The New Jersey Farm Bureau state committee of Young Farmers and Ranchers is sponsoring two award programs this year.

One is the Discussion Meet. This is a variation of the traditional debate where contestants are given one of four major agricultural issues to discuss, offer their views and recommend policy. Contestants are judged on how articulate they are, knowledge of Farm Bureau policy, politeness and policy awareness. The intent of this program is to develop and recognize future spokesmen and women for agriculture.

The second program is the Outstanding Young Farmer Award. To qualify, applicants for this award must receive most of their income from production agriculture. They are evaluated on their involvement and success in an agricultural enterprise. This award program seeks to recognize young New Jersey farmers who are making a future in farming.

Participants in both programs must be between the ages of 18 and 30 and be from New Jersey Farm Bureau families.

New Jersey Farm Bureau will send the winners from both programs on an expense paid trip to the American Farm Bureau Convention in New Orleans in early January, where they will compete for national honors. The national winners receive separate prizes from the American Farm Bureau.

For more information contact either Phyllis Collett or Peter Furey at New Jersey Farm Bureau, 168 West State Street, Trenton, New Jersey 08608 or call (609) 393-7163.

Former Rural Youth Bring Back Good Times

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LANCASTER — "Let's forget we're getting older, turn back time to 40 and 50 years ago and enjoy the evening," Richard Lefever, Quarryville, said to the 178 people who gathered to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of The Rural Youth of Lancaster County last Saturday evening. The audience did exactly that as they renewed acquaintances and reflected on good times at Willow Valley Convention Center.

The Rural Youth of Lancaster County was organized in 1937 by former 4-H and FFA students to provide social and educational activities for young adults.

"We had good times," Bob Groff, Quarryville, recalled at the Saturday night celebration.

"That we did," another member at his table chimed in. "Kids today don't know how much fun they can have without TV and expensive gadgets."

The others agreed that the fun they had at Rural Youth outshines the fun they believe kids have today. From 1937 until 1951, the organization provided most of the social activities for rural singles.

But membership was not limited to farm youth. Audrey Vane, Leola, recalls that she was a city girl who was invited to join the club. "It was one of the best things that ever happened to me," she said. As a member, she took an active role in the drama club which produced 22 three-act plays and 16 one-act plays during the club's history.

During the war years, travel was limited, and few activities besides Rural Youth existed. The club tried to meet everybody's interests by offering a variety of activities. During the club's prime, they offered more than 30 activities such as drama, debating, roller skating and discussion groups. Members learned of events not via the telephone, but rather received information through a monthly publication, "Newzette", which was packed with club news, coming events and essays.

The club practiced cooperative leadership. They sold 15-cent shares to buy refreshments, and if they showed a profit, the board of directors held a meeting to decide whether or not to pay dividents.

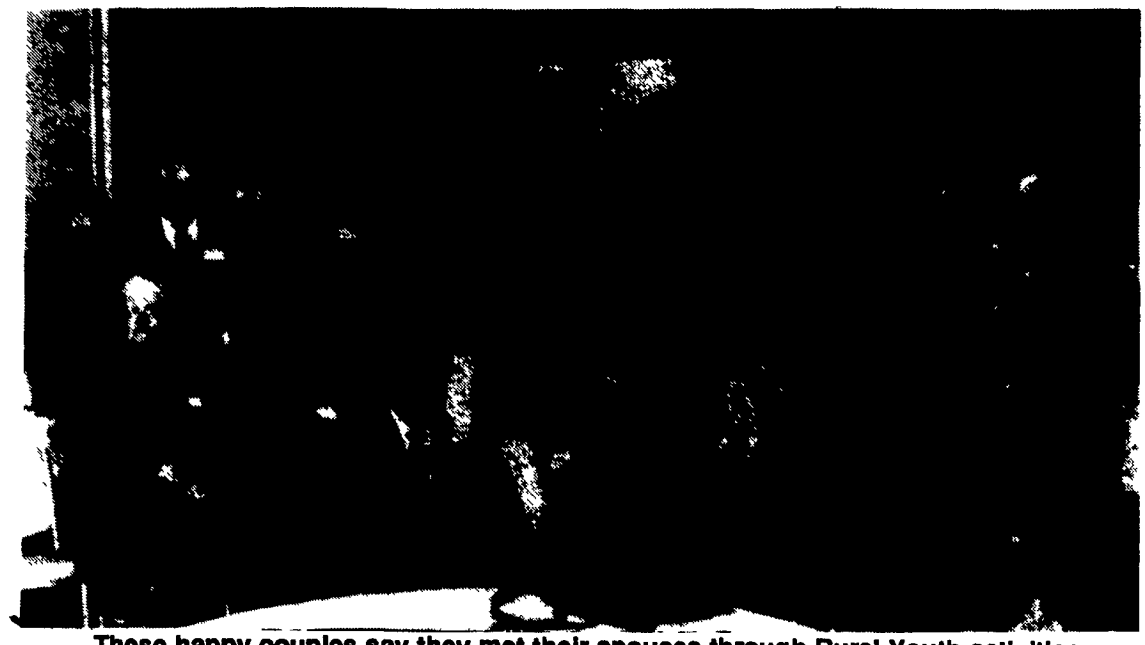
Roy Brubaker, Lititz, who helped organize the fiftieth anniversary, said members grew through the Rural Youth activities because it taught them to think, form opinions and express their thoughts.

After the war, interest remained high until the 1950's at which point, Brubaker said, there were many other organizations and activities that competed with RYLC. The club dissolved in 1952.

The Saturday celebration brought back memories as Bettie Kile Buckwalter, Lititz, led the group in songs such as "A Bicycle Built for Two" and "Tell Me Why." She called, "Now the boys sing this stanza, and the girls sing the chorus."

Square dancing was a club specialty. Anna Shreiner Rentschler recalled, "We were so good we were invited to put on an exhibition at the Harrisburg Farm Show." This past Saturday night was no exception. Four couples square danced to remind that audience "how young we used to be." The couples who danced, Ida and Allen Risser, Millie and Paul Grube, Ruth and Robert Hood, and Anna and Steward Rentschler,

(Turn to Page B19)



These happy couples say they met their spouses through Rural Youth activities. Cupid apparently was busy for thirty couples attribute Rural Youth to their union.

"Do you recognize that couple?" was a familiar question asked by many attendents at the anniversary gathering. Here John and Pat Risser, Dillsburg, try putting names to faces they haven't seen for almost 25 years.

Smiles and laughter spread across the audience as they reminisced about the social events of the organization.

A quartet made up of Roy Brubaker, Mark Hess, Wilbur Houser and Paul Huber brought back memories of former quartets.

The audience exploded with laughter and clapping as they watched the square dance demonstration that was just like old times. In the center is Ida Risser, columnist for Ida's Notebook" that appears weekly in "Lancaster Farming." Her husband Allen, center back, was a square dance caller for Rural Youth. Ida says she met Allen through the organization and they have been dancing for almost fifty years.

Bradford County Extension Meeting

The public is invited to attend the Bradford County Extension Annual Meeting, Thursday, November 5, 7:45 p.m. at the Towanda Elks Club meeting room, South Main Street, Towanda. Reservations must be made by advanced ticket sales only by October 30 and are available from Executive Committee members or from the Extension Office at $6.00 per person.

A full evening agenda includes entertainment by the Winding River Players with a humorous presentation titled, "I'm in a Hurry;" the Extension Cooperators Awards; Top 4-H Girl and Boy remarks; Extension Today by Steven Tuttle, Regional Program Leader and a short business meeting and election of 2 directors.

Executive Committee members who will have tickets are: Robert Thomson, Dale Allis, Carl Gore, Anita Whipple, Joyce Kerrick, Ronald Butts, Owens Brackman, Linda Wrisley, Ellen Foust, Roy Beardslee, Larry Brown and Sylvia Murphy.

Former Rural Youth

brought laughter and applause. They even lost their partners and had to start over "just like old-times."

The former club not only exposed them to new ideas but also new friendships. At least 30 couples boast that the club played Cupid and found them their spouse.

Brubaker said he met his wife Martha Jane Reist when he served as president of the organization and Jane was elected secretary. Mrs. Brubaker joked, "I worked for him then, and I've been working for him ever since."

Evidently, relationships didn't turn out so well for everyone. On Saturday night, one fellow said, "Well, look who is sitting at that table—there's the girl I gave a bouquet of violets."

Guests joked about their trifocals, dentures and white hair, but admitted they "show concern if I feel my mind is beginning to go."

Rural Youth of Lancaster County filled an active role for 15 years. Roy Brubaker, a former RYLC president, explained the club was unique since membership was constantly changing because "when we got married, we dropped out."

The club was formed mostly at the urging of Mary Brubaker Clark's mother who pressed the Farm Bureau, extension services and vocational departments to contribute to RYLC. From the beginning, RYLC remained an independent organization, but they did rely upon financial help from the Farm Bureaus educational fund to send some of the youth to leadership schools.

Although the group was not affiliated with any religious organization, it had strong Christian beliefs with its preamble to the constitution stating one of the purposes was "to create more interest in Christian principles and ideals." Others were "to build personality, integrity and other important factors which are essential in the building of an aggressive and happy generations." The organization's code was "To encourage democratic processes and living by the golden rule."

As the anniversary observation drew to a close, Brubaker encouraged his peers not to dwell on the past but to think about the future, for blessings are not a one-way street.

Lose Weight

Callaway's patients weigh in only every six weeks to avoid "the weekly guilt trip". "We measure their metabolic rate and give them a whole list of things they can expect to happen," he says. "The last thing on the list is weight loss. We can tell them how quickly or how slowly they can expect to lose. By deemphasizing weight loss and telling them we are interested in these other things happening, all of a sudden we've changed their orientation," the physician explains.

Callaway believes the change of regimen is harder for a farm wife to adopt than for the professional women he sees in his Washington, D.C. practice. He says he saw farm wives during his 15 years at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota.

The three most important things a person can do, Callaway advises, are to (1) establish a meal pattern with 25 per cent of the daily calorie intake at breakfast and another 30 per cent at lunch, (2) cut back on needless source of fat, such as fried foods---don't cut out meat and dairy products---and (3) build in some sort of a daily exercise program.

If a woman works by herself all day long, she probably needs some sort of an exercise network to motivate her, the doctor thinks. Without external rewards, it is very hard to do it on one's own.

The other thing for women to realize, according to Callaway, is that not everyone is genetically predisposed to be five feet nine and 112 pounds. With the distribution theory, the experts are looking at, not how much a person weighs, but where the fat is, he says.

"One way to get at this is to measure waist and hip circumference. Divide the waist measurement by the hip measurement. If the waist is 80 percent or more than the hips, the women really need to lose because they're at greater risk for diabetes and heart attack. If it's 70 per cent or less, there's really no health advantage to losing." Callaway says.

"If we can shift the focus to healthy weight, rather than "ideal weight"...focus on those with belly fat to bring down their weight slowly...These are achieveable goals," he states. If on the other hand, people expect to "meet the hype and lose three pounds a week...they're never going to get there," Callaway emphasizes. "They're going to try once or twice and get discouraged and feel even worse about themselves."

The time will come, the doctor believes, "when we'll look back on starving the way we look back on bleeding and purging. It's well meaning but uninformed."

Signals. Did you know that you silently send them every time you have an encounter with even one other person?

Body language, it's called. According to experts on the subject, a person's posture, distance to those he's in conservation with, tilting of the head, and how arms and legs are positioned are better clues to how he really feels than any words coming out of the mouth.

For instance, when uncomfortable, people tend to sit or stand prim and proper, stiffly, with hands clasped or arms tightly crossed. In a relaxed situation, or when one feels more in control, the body is more likely to be draped over a chair, the arms and hands more loosely held away from the body, the feet and legs cofortably stretched.

Animals speak a body language, too.

Angela immediately comes to mind. This old cow has long passed her peak performance years, yet earns her keep through pedigreed offspring promise. She never was -- and never will be -- a "pet." Though she regally tolerates my affectionate attempts, like a matriarch queen accepting the salutes of her peasant subjects, what she really wants is fed. Promptly. And just skip the pleasantries, please.

Morning and evening, Angela gets a scoop of our finest feed, and best available hay. And she knows it. From the moment I set foot within her vision, I sense her intense stare. Her dark eyes, above a strong, angular muzzle, follow every move.

This is the equivalent of a person drumming fingers on the table with impatience, or a little kid banging a spoon on he highchair tray. There's no doubting the message of the body language.

Anyone who doesn't listen to Angela's body language gets a quick lesson. Feeding her during my absence one morning, the eldest teased the old cow by holding the scoop of feed at a distance. With one simple but effective whack of her powerful head, Angela communicated quite effectively.

Pear, a young cow that's been dragged since calfhood to cattle shows, often displays boredom. Like a youngster who has seen many places and handled adult situations, Pear's traveling experience and general laid back temperament combine for a ho-hum attitude. Especially at milking time.

Lounging in her stall, she'll aim a withering look in the direction of anyone who insists she gets to her feet at milker attachment time.

"Ahhh, do I hafta?" Pear almost audibly moans. One can almost hear an alarm clock going off in the background.

Her stall neighbor, Joyce, also a seasoned show string veteran, takes the boredom but even farther. There can be no doubt about a cow's poor attitude about her job when she flops down on her rubber mat to rest -- with the milker still attached.

Occasionally the bovine body language showcases an obvious cantankerous streak. While truly violent displays are rare in the herd -- and usually end in a quick trip out the road -- beginner milkers often show offense at the apparent tickling sensation of the milking equipment. A rear foot, lifted with great deliberation and set square down on the milker, effectively removes it with the studied pointedness of a written protest statement.

At first sound of a feed scoop in the grain cart, the body language of a mob scene comes into play throughout the herd. Bodies shift impatiently back and forth, feet dance and shuffle, necks stretch to their full length and heads shake with impatience.

There's even an occasional display of tantrum. A two-month calf, for no apparent reason on Monday morning, suddenly came sailing out over the top of her small individual pen. All hundred and fifty or so pounds of her landed right side up and running as she hit the smooth concrete. No worse for her four-foot-hurdle, she charged across the blacktopped driveway and headed up the side of a pile of sawdust bedding in the wagon shed.

Unceremoniously snagged by the farmer, she earned prompt graduation to a larger -- and higher -- pen.

And she'll stay there until she cleans up her language.

Toddler Topics Learn-At-Home Series

WILKES-BARRE — The Northeast Region 1988 Toddler Topics learn-at-home series gives working mothers sound information concerning their children ages 2-5. Covering everything from vitamins to saving for the future, the series is helpful because it is a source of help and time-saving ideas.

"Although all 32 topics contain information that would interest working parents, six topics are dedicated to toddlers with working mothers," says Josephine Kotch, Luzerne County Cooperative Extension Service Director.

Mothers at home -- home based business potential explains how women can pursue a career while caring for their children at home.

If working at home is out of the question, mothers have another problem -- day care centers. What kind of center should be avoided? Will the child be better at home? How does a parent find the right center? Problems Encountered by Day Care Centers and Center Based vs Home Based Care are topics which answer these, and many more questions.

Information on safety, behavior problems, health and proper diet is also available to working mothers.

To enroll in the Toddler Topics program, contact Penn State University Cooperative Extension Service of Luzerne County, Courthouse Annex, 5 Water St., Wilkes-Barre, PA 18711 or call 825-1701 or 459-0736, ext. 701 no later than December 30th. First mailing will be January, 1988.

The 1987-88 national FFA officers will be elected during the convention. In addition, winners in the agricultural proficiency and judging teams will be selected and American Farmer degrees will be awarded.

Mouse In The House

Building a better mouse-trap is a task mankind has been attempting for centuries. Small wonder—mice are among the least welcome "unpaying tenants" a homeowner can have. Fortunately, there are several steps you can take to keep your home rodent-free all year 'round.

• Squeaky clean homes are less appealing to mice. A general clean-up is in order, including removal of all potential food sources. Garbage should go in sealed plastic bags, then in sturdy garbage cans with secure lids. Keep food in covered containers, too.

• Here's how to mouse-proof: Seal up potential entrances to your home, including space around pipes, wires, vents and ducts that pass through walls or floors. Even a hole that's just one-half inch in diameter can let in a mouse.

• That long awaited "better mousetrap" may be here, according to the experts at the d-CON Company, the leader in the rodenticide field for over 30 years. When there's a mouse in the house, homeowners who are tired of setting traps, handling bait or disposing of dead mice can now choose a clean and convenient alternative. The new d-CON® Mouse Killing Station. It houses an effective bait in an inconspicious container. Parents and pet-owners can be confident using it because the bait is securely enclosed. Mice enter, eat the bait and exit to die. The bait can kill in a single feeding. And the station holds enough bait to kill up to 10 mice.

• Don't give a mouse a house in your home. Mice are likely to make their nests in piles of boxes and cartons. Mice d[illegible] in the open, so store materials at least six inches from walls.

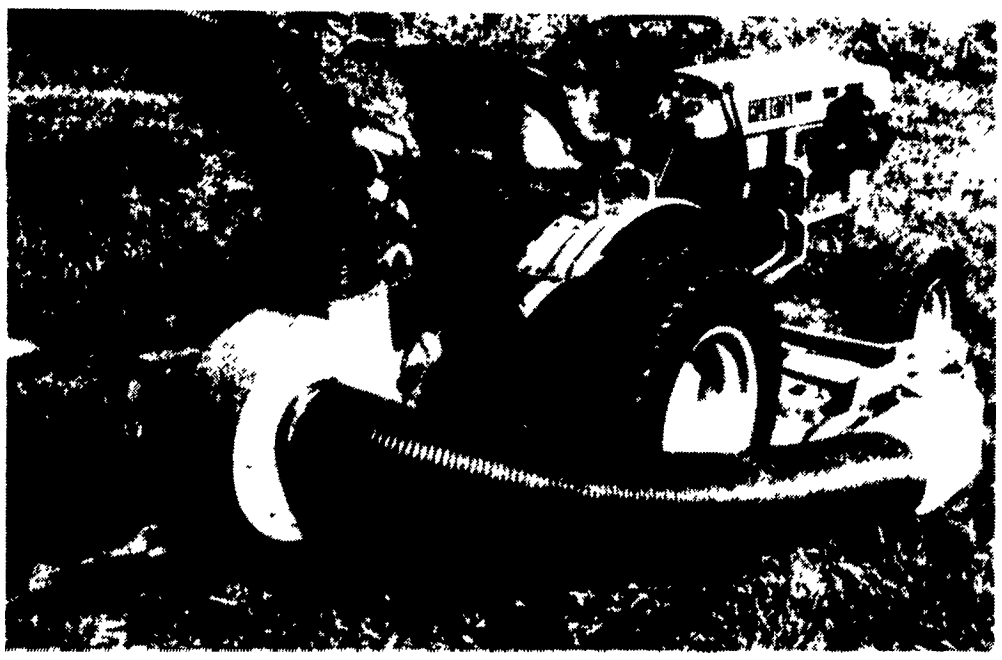
TRAC VAC

PTO VACUUMS



The Models 854 and 856 PTO Vacuums are designed for tractors using a 540 RPM and an 856 RPM power takeoff speed with front or mid drive mower. The Model 854 is for all 540 RPM tractors. The Model 856 fits the 856 RPM PTO speed.

Both PTO units mount on a category 1 3-pt. hitch. Impeller speed needed to do an efficient cleanup job is obtained with a two to one Durst gear box and necessary jack shafts to obtain a speed of 3600 RPM in the air turbine.

Eight inch intake and exhaust hoses take the grass clippings and leaves away from the mower and into the storage area. The grass clippings and leaves are collected in a 50 cubic feet storage area using a 17 cu. ft. welded steel cart and a matching all-steel cart cover.

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

Consider an Eby bulk body for reliability and ease of use

Aluminum Bodies for the Agri-Industry

Back in 1938, when Menno Eby Sr. began making wagons and cattle trucks, he was determined to give farmers strong, wooden truck bodies at a competitive price.

Some things change. Others stay the same.

Today, M. H. Eby, Inc. produces a wide variety of sturdy and reliable truck bodies for agri-business. Everything from livestock bodies through stake bodies to grain and bulk bodies. All at competitive prices.

But now every Eby body is all-aluminum. Consider some of the advantages you get over traditional wood and steel construction:

- As much as 50% lighter — allows for increased payloads.
- It will never rust through or rot.
- No need to paint.
- Overall maintenance costs are greatly reduced.
- Just an occasional power washing keeps aluminum bodies looking new for years.
- They have much better resale value.

What's more, you can always tell Eby what you want on your body. Everything we make is custom-built. A long list of options available for every body style allows you to design the body you need for your operation.

Give us a call, or write, to find out more about the lightweight alternative.

Case International Spreaders

If you have a lot of manure to spread throughout the year, we have good news for you ... six big-capacity, high-strength Case International spreaders.

The biggest models, the 595 and 575, have heaped capacities of 343 and 271 cu. ft. to handle your biggest jobs. Both models have tandem wheels on bogie-type axles to help ease heavy loads over rough ground at fast spreading speeds.

For smaller spreader jobs, the 560, 550, 540, and 530 spreaders with single axles have heaped capacities from 148 to 255 cu. ft. They have many of the design features you find in larger sizes.

- Bear Claw beaters for exceptional shredding and spreading action.
- Beveled worm gear transmission extends life of the drive components.
- Penta-treated 3/4" plywood floors.
- Rust-resistant steel sides (guaranteed to the original owner for the life of the spreader).

Come in for a spreader to match the job you have to do.

Easy on... easy off... in minutes!

Case International Loaders

You can attach or remove a Case International loader in just minutes, freeing your tractor for field work immediately.

And there are models to go with every horsepower range, from 35 hp to the big 182 hp tractors. All are built strong to stand up to the stress and strains of high-speed, full-bucket loading.

You'll get extra years of superior performance because a Case International loader and tractor combination form a perfectly matched team that insures maximum life for both loader and tractor.

A number of buckets and attachments are available to put hydraulic power into any heavy lifting job you have.

We can fix you up with a new Case International loader today. Come in and see!

Tax Management- A Way To Increase After-Tax Income

BY LARRY C. JENKINS

Tax management is an important part of total farm business management. Farmers, like all individuals, typically hope to make a profit, to minimize taxes, and to maximize after-tax income. Accomplishment of that goal requires attention to the tax consequences of each business decision. Successful tax management does not require one to be an expert in the federal tax code, but it does require enough knowledge of taxes to be able to evaluate the after-tax result of business decisions.

The objective of management actions related to taxes is not simply to pay the least possible amount of income tax. The manager who makes decisions and transacts business solely in an effort to reduce taxes may actually find after-tax income lower than if income taxes were ignored. Rational management will result in maximum after-tax income which should be the overall goal of both farm management and tax management.

Farm managers make decisions nearly every day that affect the amount of income tax paid and the amount of funds remaining to operate the farm business. Tax management involves thinking through the tax consequences of these daily management decisions before they are made.

Income tax management has both short-run and long-run dimensions. In the short-run, decisions about the date that sales or purchases occur and whether the outlays for assets are written off in one year or depreciated over several years have an impact on current year taxes. Long-run decisions relating to the form of business organization (proprietorship, partnership, corporation) and the choice of enterprises to be included in the business have an effect on after-tax income.

Too many farmers consider income tax management a task that can be delayed until tax filing time. That attitude is unfortunate because regular, year-round tax management can yield good returns, in the form of additional after-tax income, for the amount of time expended. Considering the tax implications of each management decision, when it is being made, will reduce the total amount of income tax paid.

Records an Essential part of Farm Tax Management

Accurate and complete farm accounts are essential to sound income tax management. A properly maintained farm account book is the taxpayers best source of information for evaluating farm profits and taxable income as the end of the year approaches. Estimation of farm profit for the tax year can then be completed prior to the end of the year, and thus in time to take appropriate management steps to reduce tax. The account book provides information about receipts and expenses and also is the source of information about depreciation, carryover tax credits from prior years, and other data necessary for a competent job of tax management.

The farm manager should sum the cash income and expense sections of the farm account book at least once per month and regularly transfer these monthly totals to an annual summary. This procedure enables cash-method taxpayers to rapidly complete an eleven month summary in early December that can then be used in tax management.

If the eleven month summary reflects unusually high year-to-date income, additional discretionary sales may be delayed until next year. Alternatively, expenditures that could be deferred to a future tax period can be accelerated into the current period to offset income. In contrast, if a check of records show lower than anticipated income, action may be taken to reduce deductions or to delay new capital investment until next year. In either case, records are the key to the information required in making the decision.

In early December, the taxpayer or tax preparer should complete a trial tax return that reflects the tentative tax position. It should include cash revenue and expenses, depreciation deductions, personal exemptions and deductions, and other credits and deductions that influence the tax obligation. If prepared carefully, the trial tax return gives a reasonably accurate estimate of the actual tax due at the end of the year.

The farm account book should not be overlooked as a tool for accumulating a large number of small expenditures that can make a difference at tax filing time. Expenditures for farm magazines, farm organization dues, bank service charges, and expenses related to business trips should be carefully recorded as part of the cost of operating the farm business. To avoid missing those items paid in cash, set up charge accounts at the hardware store, elevator, or other place where this type of purchase is usually made. Pay the accumulated account by check once per month and be sure the payment is recorded in the farm account book.

The Internal Revenue Service requires the taxpayer to substantiate information reported on federal income tax forms. Farm records are the best way to organize receipt and expenditure information and fulfill IRS requirements. Records are also needed during IRS audits to show the source of funds deposited to the taxpayers account. Non-taxable sources of cash inflow, such as borrowed money, amounts received as repayment on loans made, the purchase cost of bonds cashed, gifts, and inheritances, should be identified as such on deposit slips.

Account books suitable for maintaining farm financial records are available from a number of sources. Independent accountants and lenders offer a variety of types. Farm record books are also available at all Penn State County Extension Service Offices. The Penn State farm account book is especially designed for use by farmers and is thus convenient to use in recording farm business transactions.

Tax Deferral- A Useful Tool in Tax Management

Tax deferral is a useful approach to tax management, particularly for the taxpayer who does not have wide variation in income from one year to another. To the extent taxes can be deferred during the current year, more money is available for family living and for additions to net worth. Larger net worth usually will make lenders more willing to lend to the business with the result that even larger amounts of funds are available, and perhaps at lower interest rates. Thus, deferral of taxes may be especially important to the business that is expanding.

Cash-method taxpayers can defer tax by increasing purchases while postponing sales of non-perishable commodities. This process must be used carefully and with a view to market developments and prices, but it may effectively reduce taxable income through the combined impact of lower receipts and higher expenses. The taxpayer should be aware that a strategy of moving purchases and sales from one year to another can lead to a tax trap that will make it necessary to continue the process year after year to avoid "bunching" income into one year. In addition, if additional purchases include prepayments, the taxpayer must be aware of restrictions included in the Tax Reform Act of 1986. The new law limits prepayments to 50 percent of deductible farm expenses.

December is the best time for calendar-year taxpayers to take advantage of tax deferral through management of purchases and sales. To increase farm expenditures for a given tax year, taxpayers can purchase in advance many types of materials and supplies, such as limestone, plant food, chemicals, seed, and bulk feed or feed ingredients that will be purchased anyway, although at a later date. Sales can often be delayed or advanced a few days, in order to move receipts into or from a given year. However, market conditions must be considered when implementing the latter process. Primary attention must be given to selling on a favorable market.

Tax regulations do place certain restrictions on advance purchases. To be deducted, a purchase must meet all the following requirements:

1. Full payment must be made, a deposit is not sufficient.
2. The purchase must serve a business purpose; it cannot be made solely to avoid tax. Legitimate business purposes include assured availability of the product when needed or availability of a price discount at the time of purchase.
3. The deduction resulting from the advance purchase may not distort income. Income distortion involves a substantial change in revenue or expenditure that causes a large change from taxable income reported in earlier years.

Fall Deworming Protects Dairy Herd Performance

LEE'S SUMMIT, Mo. — Producers are cautioned that fall is a critical time to deworm dairy cattle.

"In northern climates, treatment of the dairy herd with an effective dewormer before cattle are housed for winter will remove all existing parasites that have built up during their months on pasture," says Dr. Van B. Ricketts, staff veterinarian for Pfizer Inc.

"In southern climates, fall treatment for parasites can protect grazing animals at a time when pasture larvae may be increasing," Ricketts continues. He explains that adult worms residing in the gastrointestinal tract of cattle produce worm eggs that are passed out of the host in the feces. These eggs soon hatch and develop into infective third-stage worm larvae. The microscopic larvae climb onto pasture grasses and are ingested by cattle throughout the grazing season. Once inside, the larvae eventually become adult egg-producing worms, thus completing the life cycle.

Internal parasites cause irritation and inflammation of the gastrointestinal tract lining. As a result, cattle are deprived of nutrients because the digestive/absorptive ability of these tissues is impaired. Resistance to other disease also may be impaired by the presence of gastrointestinal parasites, explains Ricketts.

"Parasitism of mature dairy cows is an often-overlooked detriment to milk production," says Ricketts. "However, research demonstrates that subclinical parasitic infections hinder herd performance and result in significant economic losses to dairy producers through reduced feed efficiency, wasted pasture resources, delayed breeding and reduced milk production.

"Fall treatment with an effective dewormer such as Rumatel, the feed additive dewormer manufactured by Pfizer, eliminates parasitic infections which hinder dairy herd performance," says Ricketts. "Feeding Rumatel in one day's ration removes economically damaging internal parasites, without wasting milk."

Rumatel and Pfizer's Nematel, a new bolus dewormer for cattle, are the only one-day dewormers that do not require milk discard when used in dairy. The active ingredient, morantel tartrate, is safe for cattle of all ages and may be used simultaneously with vaccines, sprays or injectable pharmaceuticals.

A single treatment of either Rumatel in feed of Nematel Bolus is effective against a broad spectrum of internal parasites, including all common stomach worms and worms of the large and small intestines.

For more information on dewormers for the dairy herd, check with your feed dealer, animal health supplier, or veterinarian.

New York Grange Re-Elects Morse As Master

CORTLAND, NY — Delegates to the 115th annual session of the New York State Grange meeting in Cortland this week, re-elected dairyman Bert S. Morse, of Marathon in Cortland County, as Master (president) of the oldest rural family organization in New York.

This will be Morse's fourth two-year term. During his preceding terms he has worked actively for New York State agriculture serving on the New York Agriculture 2000 study, helping roll back proposed ag value assessment increases, serving as vice-president of the Council of Agricultural Organizations, and promoting the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) as a means to have farmers set a price in the marketplace.

Elected as Overseer (vice-president) of the New York State Grange was William Benson, of Salt Point in Dutchess County. Benson has worked as an executive with IBM in Poughkeepsie for thirty years; is active in Dutchess County historical events; and has served the Grange in many capacities over the years.

Also re-elected as officers of the State Grange were Stephen Coye, of Ravenna (Albany) as Lecturer, Bruce Croucher of Clifton Springs (Ontario) as Steward, Robert Payne of Coeymans' Hollow (Albany) as Treasurer, Mary Morse of Marathon (Cortland) as Secretary, and Opal Sprague of Falconer (Chautauqua) to the Executive Committee.

Newly elected New York State Grange State Officers are Assistant and Lady Assistant Stewards Roger and Helen Halbert of South New Berlin (Otsego), Chaplain Fr. Joseph Schuck of Afton (Chenango), Gatekeeper Fred Bolio of Three Mile Bay (Jefferson), Pomona Joan Phelps of Basom (Genesee), Flora Katherine Skinner-Wise of Cassadaga (Chautauqua), and Ceres Cindy Bellinger of Chaumont (Jefferson).

All newly elected and re-elected officers were installed this week and will serve two-year terms.

Swine Management Column

Nearly every pig that goes to market these days is crossbred. This wasn't always the case. We used to breed Yorks to Yorks and Hamps to Hamps with the thought that pure animals were better animals. Then we made an unexpected discovery -- crossbred offspring outperform their purebred parents. And so, over the purebred industry's objections, hog producers made a workhorse out of the crossbred sow.

Now there is another controversial chapter in swine breeding -- whether or not to use crossbred boars. On one side of the fence folks say that crossbred boars improve conception rates and can better stand the rigors of confinement compared to purebred boars. On the other side, we hear arguments that crossbred boars reduce heterosis and increase variability in performance of the offspring.

David Buchanan, a geneticist from Oklahoma State University, recently reviewed experiments with hundreds of crossbred boars and thousands of pigs sired by crossbred boars. Many of my comments are based on his review.

MATING BEHAVIOR AND CONCEPTION RATE Studies show that crossbred boars breed more aggressively and at an earlier age than purebreds. We also find, based on some 40,000 matings, that conception rate is slightly better with crossbred boars. These effects disappear to some extent as boars mature.

TESTICLE AND SEMEN CHARACTERISTICS Crossbred boars, on the average, have 25% larger testicles than purebred boars. So it's not surprising that they produce more semen volume and higher sperm numbers in each ejaculate. This is probably the reason we see the improved conception rates.

LITTER SIZE AND WEIGHT Litter size and weight from purebred and crossbred boars has been compared in more than 50,000 litters. Most studies show no differences in either trait at birth or at weaning. If anything the purebred boars lead the crossbreds by a percent or two.

FEEDLOT AND CARCASS CHARACTERICTICS Data from more than 13,000 hogs show growth rate, feed conversion and carcass measurements are the same whether we use crossbred or purebred boars.

VARIABILITY IN OFFSPRING PERFORMANCE Theoretically, traits controlled by a few genes, like hair color patterns and ear size, would vary more in offspring from crossbred boars. Traits like growth rate or litter size are controlled by multiple genes and should have the same variability -- whether the pigs come from crossbred or purebred boars. Studies although variable themselves, generally support this theory. For example, I found three studies that examined how crossbred boars affect the variability of growth rate. One study showed crossbred boars increased growth rate variability, one demonstrated a decrease and the other found no effect. Other experiments show a similar pattern -- no consistent effect on variability, and when there is an effect, it's small.

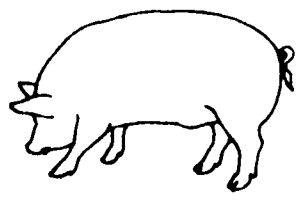
LOSS OF HETEROSIS You'll recall that hybrid vigor or heterosis is maximized when a boar is mated to a sow of a different breed. For example If you breed a Duroc boar to a York-Hamp sow, heterosis will theoretically be 100%. But if you breed a Duroc-Hamp boar to a York-Hamp sow, both animals are partly Hampshire, and heterosis will be less than 100%. Using crossbred boars will have no detrimental effect on heterois as long as you're careful not to mate animals of similar breeds.

LONGEVITY "Because crossbred animals tend to be hardier than purebreds, we would expect fewer problems from crossbred boars, especially in confinement, compared to their purebred counterparts," says Dr. Michael Miller, Extension Swine Specialist at Penn State. Not many people would disagree with that statement, but it's tough to find a study to back it up.

I recently spoke with Dr. Kent Barber at Farmers Hybrid, a company that markets crossbred or "hybrid" boars. Barber recently completed field study using Farmer's Hybrid boars against purebred boars with an average price of $500-$600 . The study included 17 farms, over 400 boars and nearly 11,000 litters.

Barber's data supports the conclusions discussed above. But the difference in culling rates was just as important. Twenty-nine percent of the purebreds had to be culled early -- 14 percent for breeding problems. Compare that to an early culling rate of only 11 percent for the hybrid boars, with 1 percent for breeding problems.

So where does that leave us? In my opinion, using crossbred boars is no worse, genetically or otherwise, than using purebred boars. But what we have to be careful of is the parent lines of the crossbred boars. If the purebred producer saves his best stock for purebred matings, and his worst stock for crossbred matings, common sense tells us that his crossbred boars will be at the bottom of the heap. When you buy a boar, crossbred or otherwise, it ought to be from the best stock on the farm.



Building On-Farm Methane Digester

UNIVERSITY PARK — Over the past decade interest in generating methane gas from animal manures has increased. Although the technology is old, it took high energy prices and research to develop low-cost digesters for the farm. Today several dozen farms around the country are digesting manure to generate biogas, a mixture of methane and carbon dioxide. This significant energy source is helping farms fuel heaters and power electrical equipment.

But designing and operating a successful and economical on-farm digester requires careful planning, and only a few farms finds this equipment fits their needs. A new booklet titled "On-Farm Biogas Production" will help those planning a digester installation. It was developed for the United States Department of Agriculture by the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service, a Cooperative Extension program of thirteen northeast universities. The booklet will be particularly helpful for those interested in building or purchasing a biogas plant for the farm.

"On-Farm Biogas Production" first discusses the operation principles and requirements to help the designer and operator understand what is needed to make the equipment work. Then, it describes how to construct the components of several types of farm digesters. Details on wall construction, inlet and outlet placement, mixing equipment, insulation, and heater sizing are covered. One section gives extensive instructions on how to design, specify and fasten a flexible gas collection cover.

The many construction pointers and general discussion on how biogas is produced will help advisors, consultants, builders, and farmers better understand how they operate. The booklet is available for $3.00 from Agricultural Engineering Extension, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802. Please make checks payable to Penn State University.

Rules For Wool Producers & Incentives

YORK — York County wool producers are reminded of additional requirements when applying for 1987 Wool Incentive payments. The normal requirements remaining in effect are that sales documents need the following information: Number of sheep shorn and month shorn, sale date, seller & buyer's name and address, net weight of wool on grease basis, net sales proceed, non-marketing deductions, amount paid to producer and the original signature on behalf of the person issuing the sales document. Documents for lambs unshorn at slaughter must state this fact plus number of head and live weight.

The additional requirement is the result of the Farm Security Act of 1985. All applicants for USDA benefits must adhere to conservation compliance. When county wool producers apply for the incentive payment they must indicate all farms in which they have an interest as a crop producer or land owner. Applicants who are less than 18 years old, like 4-H sheep producers, must indicate land in which their parents or legal guardians have an interest. To comply with the conservation aspect of the 1985 Act. 1987 applicants must have acreage reports on file showing that current cropland was row-cropped at least 1 year during the years 1980-1985. If this history is not on file in the ASCS office, the applicant must supply data for late-fillng acreage or apply conservation practices on any cropland classified as highly erodible by the Soil Conservation Service. Benefits cannot be issued until conservation compliance requirements are satisfied.

Interested wool producers can obtain further information at the York County ASCS Office at 120 Pleasant Acres Road or Phone 755-2801.

Prices Up At Calf Sale

MEYERSDALE — A Chianina-cross steer consigned by E. L. Wolfe of Jane Lew, Va., commanded a top bid of $1200 to pace the annual Roof Garden Fall Classic Club Calf Sale here Oct. 10.

The 535-lb. entry earlier in the day had been chosen champion steer by Judge Scott McIntyre of White Post, Va. John Maust of Somerset made the purchase.

McIntyre's reserve grand champion brought the sale's second high bid, $1100 for another Chianina-cross, a 520-lb. consignment by Ralph Warren of Lewisburg, W. Va. Linda Schmuck of Rockwood RD entered the winning bid.

W. J. Brant of Rockwood RD exhibited the county-bred champion, a 650-lb. Chianina-cross calf that sold to Bill Smith of Alum Bank RD for $650.

Although animals were sold on a per head basis, average prices were computed per pound, with 62 steers averaging $1.23 and nine heifers averaging $1.04. Prices were "up considerably" from last year, according to a spokesman for the sponsoring Somerset County Beef Producers. David Brant of Rockwood served as sale chairman.

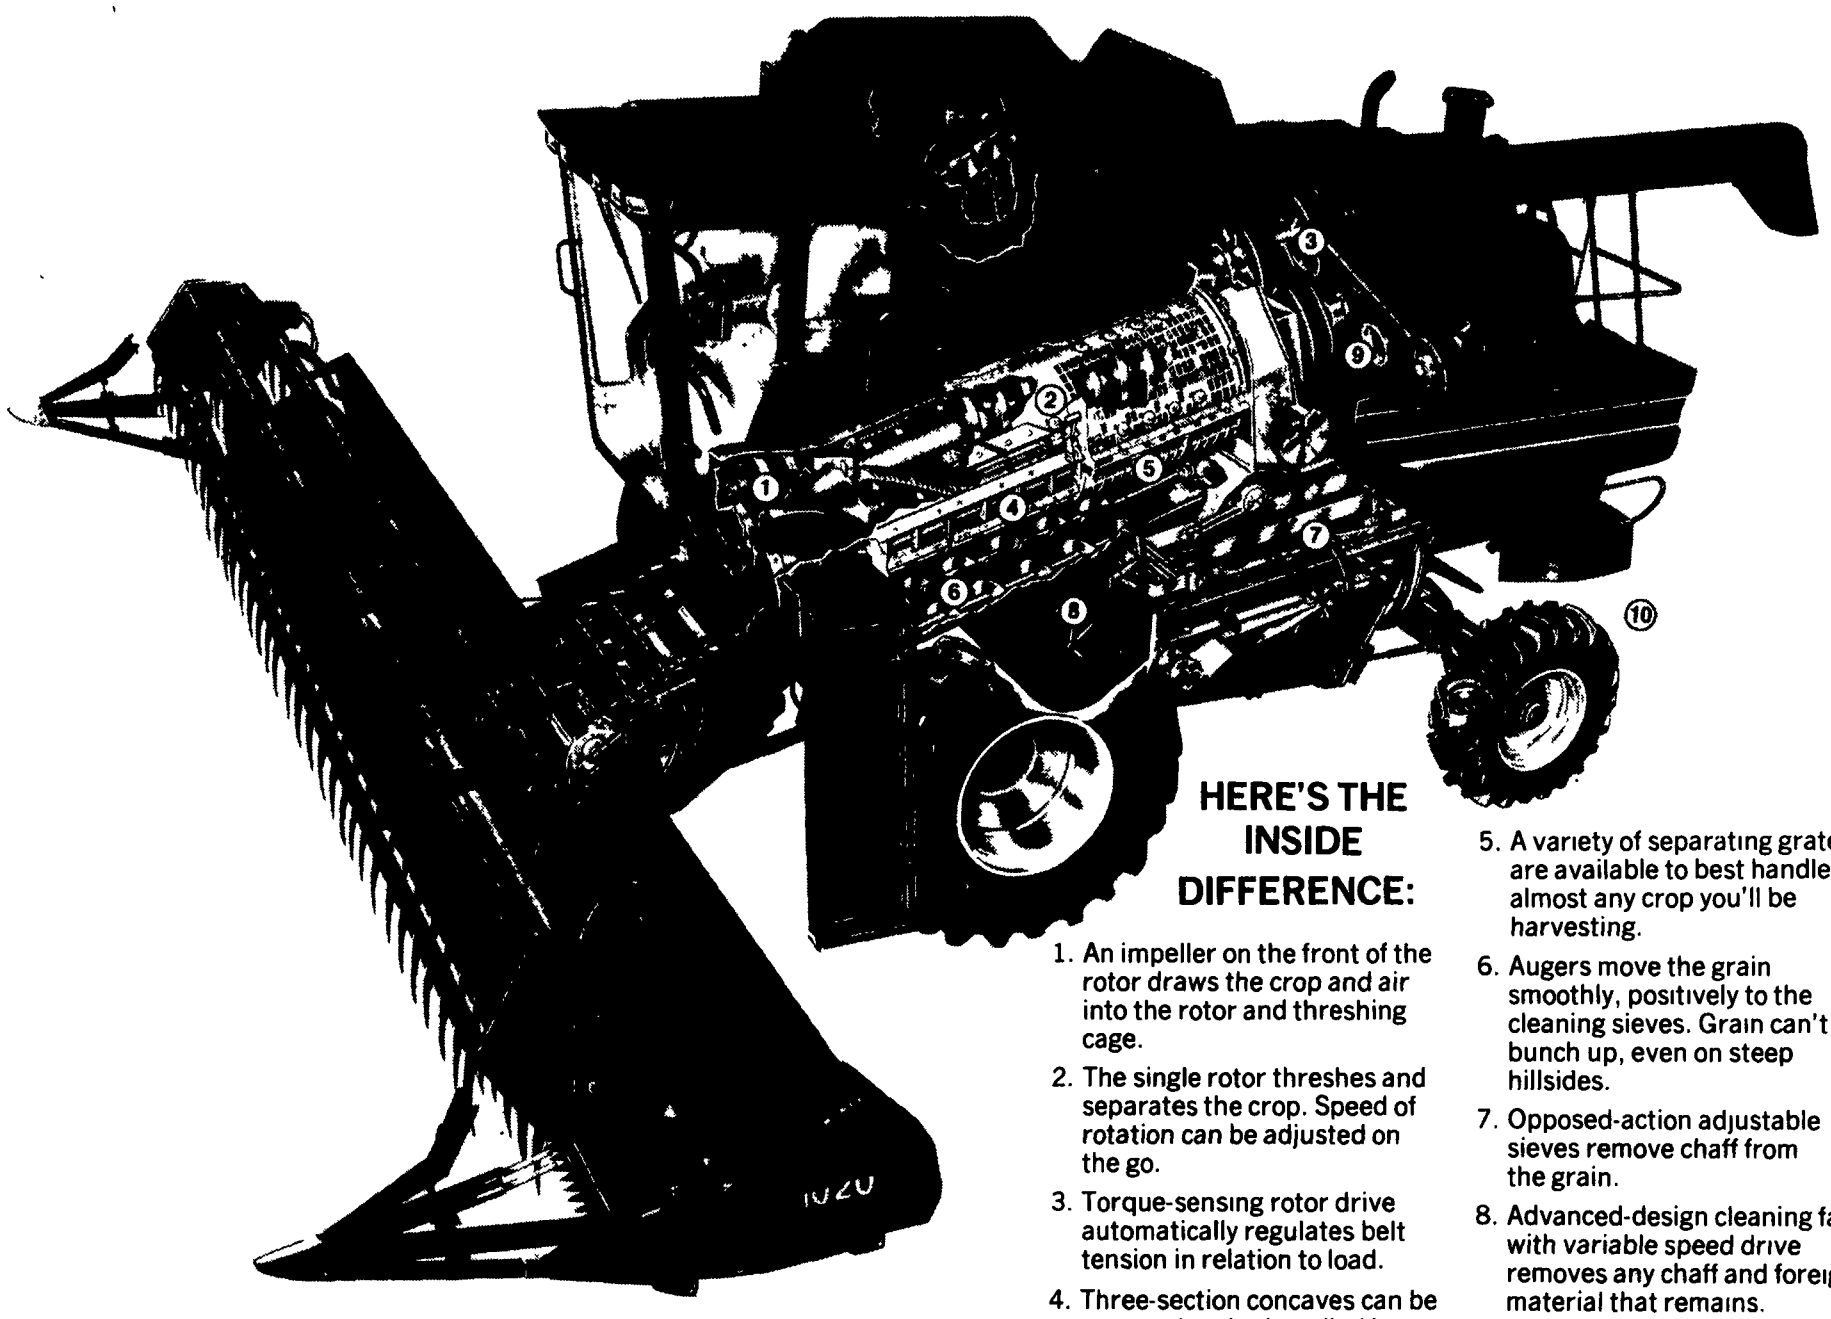
case IH Axial-Flow Combine

DIFFERENT and BETTER from the inside out



HERE'S THE INSIDE DIFFERENCE:

1. An impeller on the front of the rotor draws the crop and air into the rotor and threshing cage.
2. The single rotor threshes and separates the crop. Speed of rotation can be adjusted on the go.
3. Torque-sensing rotor drive automatically regulates belt tension in relation to load.
4. Three-section concaves can be removed and reinstalled by one man in less than 30 minutes. Small-wire and large-wire concaves are available to match different crops. Clearance is easily adjusted with a ratchet handle.
5. A variety of separating grates are available to best handle almost any crop you'll be harvesting.
6. Augers move the grain smoothly, positively to the cleaning sieves. Grain can't bunch up, even on steep hillsides.
7. Opposed-action adjustable sieves remove chaff from the grain.
8. Advanced-design cleaning fan with variable speed drive removes any chaff and foreign material that remains.
9. Positive discharge beater propels straw rearward to the straw spreaders. (Straw chopper is optional.)
10. Wide spread twin-rotor straw spreaders distribute discharge material uniformly and can be removed in seconds for windrowing material.

Why Axial-Flow is superior. On conventional combines, the grain passes between the cylinder and concave only once. Consequently, the threshing action is severe. But with Axial-Flow, grain is threshed several times — repeatedly, but gently — as it spirals around the single, large diameter rotor and passes through the threshing cage. Multiple threshing plus gentle threshing results in less cracked grain, less dockage at the elevator and top price for every bushel.

Centrifugal force replaces straw walkers. Axial-Flow eliminates the need for straw walkers — a substantial source of grain loss with conventional combines. Consequently, the more grain you grow, the more grain you'll save with the more efficient Axial-Flow system.

Tighten worn steering arms on 56-66-86 series IH tractors without welding, splitting, or bolting.

A taper is machined into the new steering arms. A sleeve is then broached to match the original splines of the spindle. The outside of the sleeve is tapered to match the inside taper of the arm. These two, finely-machined surfaces then meet for a neat, permanent, surelock fit. A key is installed for added, strength and safety.

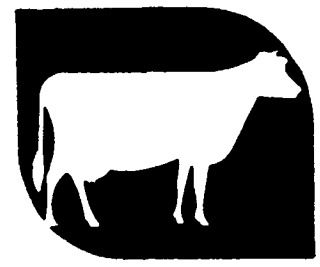
PRO-4 SANITIZING TEAT DIP



Don't kid yourself . . . killing GERMS is only part of the mastitis prevention program!! The answer is PRO-4 Teat Dip.

Pro-4 formulation recognizes that killing germs is only half the battle in mastitis control. Maintaining good healthy teat tissue is the other half of the battle that must be won to reduce mastitis. The multiple conditioning action on the teat skin of Pro-4 is superior to any teat dip on the market today. Pro-4 Teat Dip has a record of 14 years of safe and effective use.

ICU And Neonatal Center For Horses Opens At New Bolton

KENNETT SQUARE — Treating critically ill horses, one of veterinary medicine's greatest challenges, has been made easier with the establishment of the $2.25 million Connelly Intensive Care Unit and Graham French Neonatal Section for horses at the New Bolton Center, the large animal facility of the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine.

The custom-designed 11,000-square-foot intensive care unit and neonatal section at the New Bolton Center is the first of its kind for the care of large animals.

The ICU and the neonatal section are state-of-the-art facilities that will "no doubt be used as a model for large animal intensive care facilities for the next two decades," according to Dr. William Donawiek, Professor of Surgery at the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine.

Special features of the intensive care facility include:

— an electric monorail designed to move horses weighing more than 1,000 pounds. In cases of severe injury, horses can be transported by monorail to the recovery pool and later to the ICU.

— 24-hour nursing care, complete with a central nursing station designed to enable the duty nurse to observe all patients through individual windows, as in a hospital for humans.

— oxygen and compressed air in each stall

— heated floors for newborns in the neonatal section

— special air-handling systems designed to meet the temperature requirements of critically ill animal patients

"Caring for a horse in intensive care is much like caring for a human in intensive care. We have specially designed machinery for electronic monitoring of heart rate, pulse, and blood pressure. But you have to remember that a horse thrashes around, and weighs five times more than a human, as well, making it much more difficult to treat than a human patient," said Donawick.

"Caring for a critically ill horse which weighs over 1,000 pounds and requires from 70 to 110 liters of fluid every 24 hours is no easy task," he adds.

The Connelly Intensive Care Unit is designed to complement several unique features of the C. Mahlon Kline Orthopedic and Rehabilitation Center, such as its recovery pool.

After surgery, for example, the horse can emerge safely from anesthesia in the recovery pool while supported by a large raft. The animal can then be transported by the monorail system into the Connelly unit for intensive care and back to the recovery pool for water therapy.

Because of the high cost of intensive care, owners of valuable racing and breeding horses or prize-winning cows are most likely to use this facility. Although the ICU is designed for all large animals, nearly 90 percent of the intensive care patients seen at the Center are horses.

Penn's veterinarians care for nearly 1,000 critically ill horses a year, according to Donawick. These horses suffer from colic, severe neurologic disease, botulism, renal failure, critical cardiac disease, liver failure, Potomac horse fever, critical eye disease, and laminitis.

The Graham French Neonatal Section will house delicate newborn foals which are highly susceptible to disease, foals born prematurely, and foals suffering from botulism, septicemia, or neonatal maladjustment syndrome.

A bacterial infection called septicemia affects the greatest number of foals admitted to the neonatal section, according to Dr. Wendy Vaala, lecturer in medicine.

A newborn foal is exposed to bacteria during birth. Antibodies in the colostrum, the first milk of the mare, fight off bacteria. But the foal is only able to absorb these antibodies into its bloodstream during the first 18- to 24-hour period after birth.

This brief period can be shortened further if the birth is a difficult one, but close supervision of the newborn with subsequent tube-feeding of colostrum can prevent septicemia.

Recovering from septicemia can be a long and expensive process, but owners are willing to spend the time and effort to save a valuable future race or breeding horse, says Vaala.

Newborn foals are also prone to gastrointestinal ulcers and internal bleeding or intestinal constrictions, and foals born prematurely may need the help of a respirator; but in recent years such cases have been successfully treated at Penn's Vet School.

Each animal patient will be attended by groups of veterinarians from different disciplines such as surgery, medicine, and anesthesia, with input from specialists in reproduction, cardiology, and nutrition when needed.

Devoted to providing the best possible intensive care for large animals, the ICU was designed by Bohlin Powell Larkin Cywinski architects. The Connelly Intensive Care Unit is funded primarily by The Connelly Foundation.

Mrs. Anne French Thorington has provided funds for the construction of the neonatal section, which will be named the Graham French Neonatal Section in memory of her father.

Care for critically ill horses has been made easier with the establishment of the Connelley Intensive Care Unit at the New Bolton Center.

WEIGHT AND YIELD OF BROILERS
By Forest Muir
Assoc. Professor of Poultry Science

Between 1980 and 1984, the per capita consumption of poultry meat increased an average of 1.7 pounds per year. Since 1984, the increase in per capita consumption of poultry meat has been curvilinear. The increase was 3.0 pounds in 1985, 3.7 pounds in 1986, and is projected to be 5.6 pounds in 1987. In addition to increased consumption of poultry meat, there has also been a change in product form. In 1980, 64% of the broilers were marketed in whole bird form. By 1985, less than half (47%) of the broilers left the processing plant in whole bird form. The reaminder (53%) left the processing as cut-up product (39%) or in further processed (14%) form. Increased demand by consumers for more convenient food products has stimulated the further processing of poultry meat into patty or nugget type products. Large quantities of hand deboned breast and thigh meat are used in the manufacture of these premium items. The increased demand for further processed premium poultry items has increased the need for yield information for various sized broilers.

Poultry researchers at Mississippi State University recently published information on the eviscerated and component yield for broilers at 4 different stages. The data were obtained from 4 commercially available strain crosses at 6, 7, 8 and 9 weeks of age. The values reported were the combined average for the 4 strains.

The weight of the premium priced components of the carcass increased with increased age (weight) of the broilers. This was true for both sexes and should be expected. The interesting aspect is that the percent yield of deboned meat from the breast and thigh increased with increasing live weight. The results of this research would indicate that the demand for increased quantities of further processed poultry meat will be accompanied by an increase in growout age. The broiler companies will grow the broilers longer to produce a heavier broiler which yields higher percentages of deboned meat from the breast and thighs. Unfortunately, the authors failed to present feed conversion values which would be required to determine the optimum processing age for these heavier broilers.

Herd Management Can Increase Sow's Reproductive Efficiency

MINNEAPOLIS, MN — Hog producers can consistently achieve reproductive efficiency in the range of 21 to 22 weaned pigs per sow per year by implementing a herd management program in consultation with a veterinarian, Wayne R. Freese, D.V.M., of Worthington, MN, told editors here at the annual meeting of the American Association of Agricultural Editors.

Dr. Freese, President of the American Association of Swine Practitioners (AASP), detailed the costs of poor reproductive performance at a Livestock Health News Conference co-sponsored by the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA) and three other national veterinary organizations.

Litter sizes have recently increased from an average of 7.2 to 7.4 weaned pigs to 7.5 to 7.7, Dr. Freese said, and the best herds are already achieving litters in the range of 9.5 weaned pigs. "There's a lot of room for performance improvement," he emphasized, noting that the average sow now brings 1.5 to 1.6 litters per year when performance in the range of 2.3 litters is attainable.

The key to increasing reproductive efficiency in swine herds is better animal husbandry, according to Dr. Freese. "That means better management of people and facilities to improve performance and prevent disease," he said.

Reproductive efficiency is one of the two most important determinants of profitability on a pig farm, Dr. Freese pointed out. The other is the efficiency of conversion of grain to pork.

Major components of an efficient herd management program included in Dr. Freese's presentation to the editors are:

• Record keeping and interpretation;

• Making sure the farrowing house is clean and comfortable;

York County 4-H Beef And Sheep Round-Up

YORK — On October 20th, the York County 4-H Lamb & Beef Clubs combined efforts to hold their annual market animal round-ups at Weikert's Livestock Buying Station, York.

The highlight of the event was the auctioning off of this year's champion steer. Twelve-year-old Jason Rankin of Abbottstown, showed his steer to the championship spot. He went on to set a new price record at the sale. His 1220-pound steer sold to Hoss's Steak & Sea House of Duncansville. Hoss's was a first-time buyer at the round-up and set a record price by bidding $3.00 per pound for the champion steer. Hoss's Steak & Sea House also bought the reserve champion steer owned by Cathy Shive of Seven Valleys. Her 1270-pound steer brought $1.90 per pound. Hoss's then turned around and donated the steer back to the York County 4-H Beef Club, and it was resold to R.S. Delp & Sons of Seven Valleys with the profit going to the 4-H Beef Club.

Mr. John Comerford, Penn State beef specialist judged the steer show, while Mr. Ron Miller, herdsman for Wey Farms in Kutztown, judged the sheep show.

John Eaton, Jr. of Windsor, brought out the round-up's champion lamb. The 120-pound lamb was also heavy weight champion. Willie the Butcher bought his lamb for $2.50 per pound. The reserve champion was exhibited by Greg Grand champion steer at the York County 4-H Beef Round-up was shown by Jason Rankin of Abbottstown. His 1220-pound steer sold to Hoss's Steak & Sea House of Duncansville, PA for a record price of $3.00 per pound.

John Eaton Jr., of Windsor, showed his lamb to the championship spot in the York County 4-H Lamb Show. His 120 pound lamb was purchased by Willie The Butcher, who is located in the Stauffer's of Kissel Hill Stores.

Herd Management

- Keeping sows cool in hot weather when baby pigs ought to be born into a 90 degree environment;
- Helping producers match hog breeds to their facilities and climate;
- Assessing boar fertility;
- Making seasonal adjustments in the amount and type of feed used;
- Controlling the diseases that affect performance by vaccination and treatment.

"Most hog farmers recognize the importance of reproductive efficiency, but we don't see many farms where they have put all the pieces together to make a program work," Dr. Freese said.

"A veterinarian can be relied upon to give the producer a non-commercial second opinion on everything that's being done to achieve reproductive efficiency. The veterinarian knows what ought to be changed or altered to achieve efficiency, and he or she is not selling feed, equipment or facilities," Dr. Freese said.

A professionally planned herd management program will produce a designated number of weaned pigs with high potential for survival and growing efficiency, using the minimum number of sows. Such a program will also produce pigs free from diseases that can be transmitted, Dr. Freese said.

Off-Road Vehicle From Deere

MOLINE, IL — From now on you may hear people saying AMT when they're referring to a utility hauler that can ride over rough terrain. That's because John Deere has introduced a totally new concept in off-road vehicle design — the AMT 600. AMT can stand for Almost A Truck, according to John Deere marketing coordinator Pat Hammell. "When we developed the AMT, there were only two kinds of vehicles on the market. Those with the ability to handle a wide variety of terrain but with low cargo carrying capacity. And those with high cargo capacity but no ability to run cross-country. Since our utility vehicle combines high cargo capacity with off-road capability, we decided to give it a new name. The AMT 600 can haul up to 600 pounds of material over all kinds of ground conditions."

One aspect of the design that makes the AMT so unusual is the drive system. There are four wheels under the cargo box and a three-step drive system that powers all four wheels.

The first step is a variable-speed drive system that transfers power from the engine. There's a centrifugal primary clutch on the engine that's connected by a drive belt to a secondary sheave. With increasing and decreasing engine speed, the belt ratio changes automatically. So the operator can change travel speeds simply by pressing a throttle lever on the right handlebar for infinite speed control up to 20 mph. There's no shifting necessary. When the throttle lever is not engaged, the engine idles.

The primary produces a 62-to-1 torque reduction for lugging ability under load.

The second step is a transaxle that carries the power to the first set of wheels. The transaxle has three settings — forward, neutral and reverse. It's designed to include a differential action that allows the inside wheels to rotate slower than the outside wheels in a turn, lessening wheel skid and tire scuffing. A differential lock is built in for traction in slippery spots.

John Deere has introduced a utility vehicle that combines high cargo capacity with off-road capability.

The third step is case hardened roller chain that powers the second set of wheels. The rear axle is driven by #50 heavy-duty industrial chain from the center axle so that both sets of wheels work in tandem.

Another unique feature of the AMT 600 is its fifth wheel used for steering. The 5-wheel configuration provides stability that's especially appreciated when running in rugged country.

The power plant is an 8.5 hp (341cc) gasoline engine with electric start. Fuel capacity is 4.75 gallons (U.S.) or 18 L. The 12-volt electrical system includes a battery rated at 32 amps per hour and an 11 amp alternator. A 50-watt halogen headlight is standard equipment.

The brake control is a lever on the left handlebar. When engaged it activates two 10-inch disc brakes providing nearly 9,000 inch-pounds of stopping power at the rear axle.

Load capacity is rated at 600 pounds in the cargo box, or 12.5 cubic feet of loose material. The box measures 48¼ inches wide (inside), 43 inches long and 11 inches deep. The box can be lifted to a 45-degree angle for cleaning, and for access to the drive components.

There's a 22½ -inch front tire and four 25-inch rear tires. With an average of 17 pounds per square inch per tire (with a 200-pound operator and 600-pound load), the AMT can ride over turf without rutting or causing ground compaction problems.

An optional tow hitch allows the AMT 600 to pull another 1,000 pounds behind.

The AMT weighs 800 pounds. It's sized right to fit in the bed of a standard pickup truck for fast transport to the end of the road.

Where the pickup truck stops is where the AMT begins.

Glatfelter Pulp Shares Cost Of Seedlings

SPRING GROVE — Landowners are reminded that it is time to plan for tree planting to be done in the Spring of 1988. The Glatfelter Pulp Wood Company, Spring Grove, Pennsylvania, will share on a 50-50 basis, the cost of seedlings with interested landowners. Since the inception of the company program in 1951, more than 17 million seedlings have ben furnished to landowners in these south central Pennsylvania counties: Adams, Berks, Cumberland, Dauphin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Lancaster, Lebanon, Mifflin, Northumberland, Perry, Schuylkill, Snyder and York.

Tree seedings available this year under the Glatfelter program are Austrian pine, Virginia pine, Japanese larch, white pine, red pine, Norway spruce and white spruce and Glatfelter will match the purchase of up to 5,000 seedlings by an individual landowner. Orders will be filled on a first-come, first-serve basis. All seedlings are furnished by the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources. The Glatfelter Company imposes no restrictions of any kind, but the landowners must comply with State regulations regarding the planting of these trees. For example, they may not be used for Christmas trees, decorative or ornamental uses or for windbreaks. Minimum order acceptable is for 1,000 seedlings, which will plant 1½ acres. All trees become the property of the landowner who may harvest them at a future date for any wood product.

The Glatfelter program has an overall dollar limitation. Seedling orders will be accepted by the Department on a first-come basis until the Glatfelter program dollar limit has been reached. After that, payment for orders will be the responsibility of the landowner.

If you are a landowner who is planning to plant tree seedlings in 1986, act now! The supply of seedlings for the 1988 season will be limited. For information about placing your order, see your local County Agent, your Bureau of Forestry district office or write directly to The Glatfelter Pulp Wood Company, Spring Grove, PA 17362.

Badger Northland Introduces Largest Manure Auger

KAUKAUNA, WI — A new, high-capacity manure auger, featuring an over-size auger for faster, more efficient movement of manure from barn to spreader, is now available from Badger Northland Inc., the Kaukauna, Wisconsin-based manufacturer of farm materials handling equipment.

The Badger BN130 Manure Auger, designed to prevent manure rollback and provide continuous material movement, features a 13¼ " diameter auger, the largest available. Housed in a rust-free 15" diameter heavy wall PVC pipe, the auger's ¼ " thick steel flighting and ⅓ pitch assure greater durability and increased conveying capacity, even at steep angles, A heavy-duty drive frame with double reduction drive keeps the auger moving at 190 revolutions-per-minute, for faster and more efficient manure handling.

For added strength and extended use, the auger's lower end bearing and hopper mount are made of a rigid steel channel-type design. The lower auger support bearing is constructed of special self-lubricating wood to eliminate maintenance. And all precision ball bearings are protected from manure contact and relubricable for longer service life.

Available in 16', 18' and 20' lengths, with horsepower requirements of 5 hp. and 7½ hp., The Badger BN130 Manure Auger can be ordered with an optional stand to support the unit when required.

For additional information write: Manure Auger, Badger Northland Inc., 1215 Hyland Avenue, P.O. Box 1215, Kaukauna, WI 54130-9986, or call (414) 766-4603.

HAVING SOIL PROBLEMS?

Here's A Timely Tip...

Apply lime on frozen ground

Lime can be applied almost anytime however winter months are ideal because the ground is firm and the freezing and thawing action helps to disseminate the lime in the soil

4-H Round-Up Scheduled

CARLISLE — The 1987 Cumberland County 4-H Beef and Lamb Roundup will be held Tuesday, November 10, at the Carlisle Livestock Market. The Show will start at 9:00 A.M. and the Sale at 5:30 P.M.

Members' animals will be judged on type (how well they compare to an "ideal" market steer or lamb). The 4-H'ers will be judged on how well they show and fit (groom) their animals.

Four-H Livestock Club members learn many of the practical aspects of animal husbandry. Furthermore, they have a chance to develop business skills and develop socially.

Anyone can buy an animal. This is an excellent opportunity to put some quality beef or lamb in your freezer. Arrangements can be made for meat processing prior to sale night. Feel free to come out to the Carlisle Livestock Market and support the 4-H Beef and Lamb Roundup.

Big Dutchman Quality...

You can pass it on...from generation to generation.

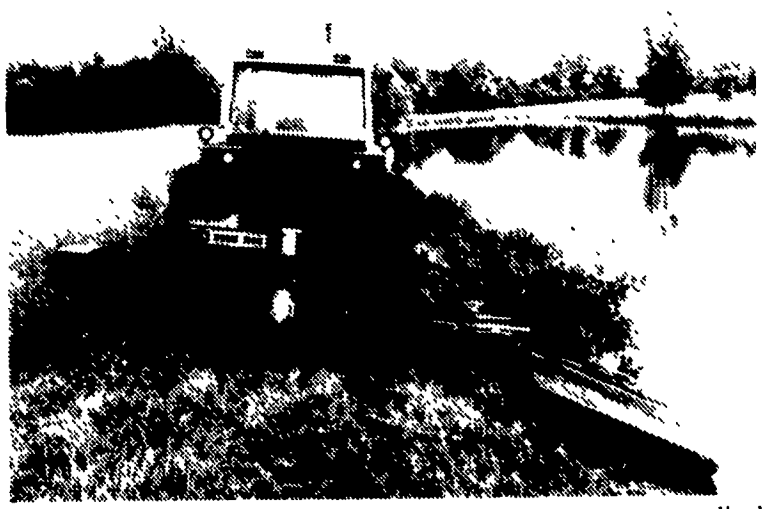
THE SIDE-MOUNT THAT CUTS GRASS AND COSTS.



Our new Bush Hog SM-60 side mount cutter cuts ditch-banks, roadsides, and fishpond banks and it cuts costs. The SM-60 is engineered with the quality features that are making Bush Hog the biggest name in farm implements:

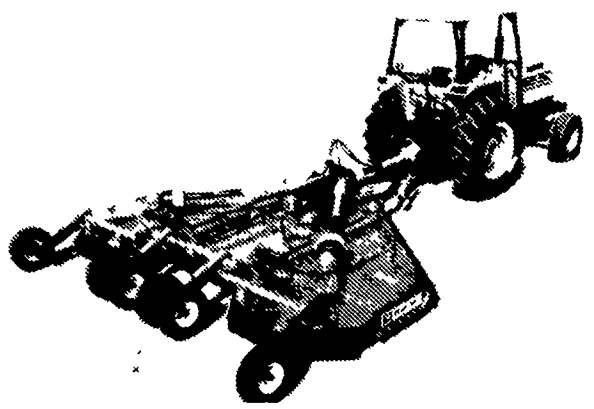
With a vertical cutter head movement range of 175 degrees, 90 degrees up for jobs such as maintaining fence rows and 85 degrees down for jobs such as mowing ditches, and 31½ inches of lateral movement. With automatic lateral adjustment of a counterweight that keeps tractors on a safe, even keel while reducing wear and tear on the hitch.

Come in and see us to put all these features to work on your farm—cutting grass and cutting costs.

BUSH HOG®

SM-60 Side Mount

NOT ALL FIELDS ARE PERFECTLY FLAT.



That's why the Bush Hog® model 2615 15-foot cutter's wings are designed to float along contours as severe as 90 degrees up or 22 degrees down while shredding stalks, clipping pastures or cutting along rights-of-way, drainage ditches, terraces and fence rows. As it does so, an automatic height adjustment keeps the wings cutting at the same height as the center section. A framing system featuring closed box members allows us to make the 2615 pounds lighter without sacrificing any of the strength you've come to expect from a Bush Hog. And, less weight not only means less wear and tear on your tractor but it has also allowed us to cut the price.

Why pay more to get less—make Bush Hog's success your success.

Mastitis Treatment Needed When Prevention Fails

BY NATIONAL MASTITIS COUNCIL

Even in the best managed herds there will be occasional cases of clinical mastitis that require treatment. Before beginning treatment, realize first that a clinical case represents a failure of mastitis control and that treatment is a costly process that will not have much effect on the level of mastitis in the herd. Ask yourself why that cow has clinical mastitis and how future cases can be prevented.

Mastitis control programs, especially treatment routines, are best developed in consultation with a veterinarian skilled in mastitis control. Treatments selected will be based on knowledge of the kinds of organisms most likely to be causing clinical mastitis in the herd. This knowledge is best obtained by culture of all clinical cases over a period of several months; in some herds, culture of all clinical cases is a routine practice. The best time to culture clinical cases is as soon as the condition is discovered and before any treatment is given. Usually, treatment should be given before culture results are available. If results indicate that the treatment given was inappropriate, it can be changed.

Subacute mastitis, with abnormal milk but little or no swelling of the udder and no systemic signs, is best treated, at least initially, by intramammary infusion of a commercial mastitis product. Label directions as to treatment intervals, number of treatments and milk withholding time should be followed.

Acute mastitis, with a hard swollen quarter and often with fever and loss of appetite, should be treated by or under the supervision of a veterinarian. In such cases, antibiotics usually are given intravenously or intramuscularly and also in the mammary gland. Supportive treatment including electrolytes and antiinflammatory drugs may be required in severe cases. In the early acute stages, frequent milking out of the affected quarter may be helpful.

After treatment, clinical cows should be marked with ankle bands, tail tags or other methods to ensure that their milk is not added to the herd milk. Milking affected cows separately, as in the hospital string of a large herd or last in the milking order of a smaller herd, will reduce the possibility both of transmitting the disease to normal cows and of contaminating herd milk.

Clinical cases that do not return to normal after treatment or that appear to clear up but then reoccur after days or weeks should be reevaluated. In these cases, culture and determination of antibiotic sensitivity may suggest a more effective treatment. Cows with infections that have resisted several courses of treatment or that culture indicates are unlikely to be cured should be considered for culling.

Answering Dairy's Challenge To Be Topic Of Meeting

SOUTHAMPTON — "Answering Dairy's Challenges" is the theme of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative's annual meeting, scheduled for Nov. 19-20 at the Host Farm Resort, Lancaster, Pa.

The two-day event gets underway Thursday morning, Nov. 19, at 9:45 a.m. with a meeting of Atlantic's officers and delegates. During the morning session, the cooperative's management's team -- including Daniel D. Plinski, Holly Milk general manager, and Allen D. Schopbach, QC Inc. president -- will report on the past fiscal year.

During the afternoon session, Dr. Paul E. Hand, secretary and general manager, will present his report to the delegate body. A presentation by Boyd E. Wolff, Pennyslvania Secretary of Agriculture, and a question and answer period will follow.

The annual banquet will be held Thursday night, beginning at 6:15 p.m. Guest speaker will be Rep. James M. Jeffords of Vermont. A well-known supporter of agricultural issues, Jeffords will talk on upcoming dairy legislation.

Toastmaster for the banquet will be George Steele, retired chairman of the board, Agway Inc. Entertainment will be provided by the "Castle Family," a musical family group.

On Friday morning, Nov. 20, the Young Cooperators will sponsor a breakfast program at 7 a.m. Organized by Atlantic's Young Cooperator Consultant Committee, the program will feature guest speaker Pat Leimbach, a country humorist and farm wife from Vermilion, Ohio.

During the program, Atlantic president Robert B. McSparran will present the 1987 Outstanding Young Cooperator Award and the 1987 Agricultural Communicator Award.

The general session follows at 9 a.m. and will include action on the annual meeting resolutions, which will be presented before the entire delegate body.

A separate ladies program will run concurrently with the delegates meeting. On Thursday, participants can choose between a trip to the Vanity Fair Outlet in Reading or a tour of Lancaster County historical sights. Friday's program will feature rural sociologist Carolyn Sachs, Penn State University, who will present "Stress on the Farm for Agricultural Women."

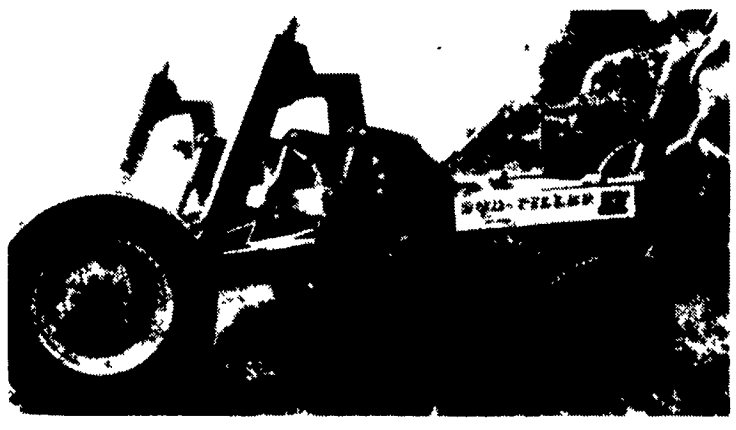
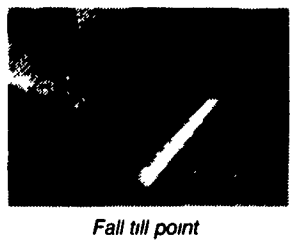
INCREASE YOUR PROFITS WITH THE TWO SEASON CONSERVATION TILLAGE COMPANION. THE BLU-JET SUB-TILLER II.



Quick change points on BLU-JET's Sub-Tiller II now make it easy to use one machine for fall and summer tillage!

Designed for use in standing row crops, summer till points increase moisture absorption 10" to 14" deep without root disturbance Roots are given room for healthier growth and are able to go deep through the shattered hardpan to reach trace minerals

Summer till point



Fall till point

After harvest, the Sub-Tiller II's fall till points penetrate 14" to 16" deep and fracture soil up to 20" on either side of the shank Rigid or spring cushion coulters easily cut through heavy trash And because the crop residue is not disturbed, erosion is controlled and cattle can continue to graze

Today's heavy equipment causes severe soil compaction Don't let it squeeze your profits Put the two season conservation tillage companion to work, BLU-JET's Sub-Tiller II. Available in 3, 5, 7, and 9 shank units, 3 point or pull type, with shear bolt or flex trip design

Foraging Around

FORAGE MIXTURES

Much has been written or spoken about the advantages and disadvantages of mixtures of legumes and grasses for forages versus pure stands of either. In some instances pure stands of alfalfa or other legumes, or grasses, may be the best bet for your situation. But if you have a choice, check out the possibilities of simple legume-grass mixtures as well.

Why mixtures? Researchers have shown that in many areas, over a period of years, simple mixtures of legumes and grasses that grow well together are frequently higher yielding and more persistent, especially on soils with variable drainage. Mixtures are also usually easier to harvest and cure as hay than a pure legume.

Including the grass will generally result in a feed only slightly lower in protein, and there is almost no difference in the total feed value as determined by analysis.

Furthermore, feeding a legume-grass mixture instead of a pure legume to ruminant animals helps to minimize bloat. Milk fever and reproduction problems may also be less prevalent when mixtures, rather than pure legumes, are fed to dairy cows.

Keep Mixtures Simple

But for the most part the mixtures you choose should be relatively simple, usually one legume and one grass that grow well together. Why? For one thing, it's difficult to manage complex mixtures since the management that suits one specie may be harmful to another. Thus, proper management of a complex mixture is almost impossible. Under a given management system even if you start out with many species in a mixture, usually only a few survive. And, contrary to some opinions, complex mixtures seldom, if ever, outyield simple mixtures.

Making Up Mixtures

There are, of course, several factors to consider when putting mixtures together. The components should be similar in their adaptation to soil and climatic conditions. They should have a similar rate of establishment (in a previous column I referred to seedling aggressiveness), they should be similar in life span and they should be similar in maturity. There are, of course, other factors that could also be mentioned. And some might be more critical than others. But those mentioned here will at least give you an idea of some of the thinking that goes into putting mixtures together.

About Seeding Rates

Seeding rates, and the make-up of mixtures, are also related to many factors. These include: seed size, germination, seed treatment, establishment capacity and root or stem spreading characteristics of the species. Conditions under which the seedings are made, such as seedbed, time and depth of seeding, as well as seeding method, must also be considered. Taking all of these factors into consideration, below are several tried and proven mixtures, along with seeding rates, of several cool season legumes and grasses for various soil conditions found across Pennsylvania and other northeastern states. All seeding rates are given as pounds per acre.

WELL-DRAINED SOILS (long term hay) Alfalfa 8-12 pounds with one of the following: orchardgrass 3 pounds; smooth bromegrass 6-8 pounds; timothy 4 pounds; perennial ryegrass 5-6 pounds; reed canarygrass 8 pounds.

POORLY TO WELL-DRAINED SOILS (long term hay or pasture) Birdsfoot Trefoil 6-8 pounds with one of the following: timothy 4 pounds; bromegrass 5 pounds; reed canarygrass 6 pounds.

POORLY TO WELL-DRAINED SOILS (short term hay) Red clover 6-8 pounds and timothy 4-6 pounds.

There are, of course, other combinations that can be used. But remember to take all of the factors mentioned in this column into consideration when putting together a specific mixture for your farm

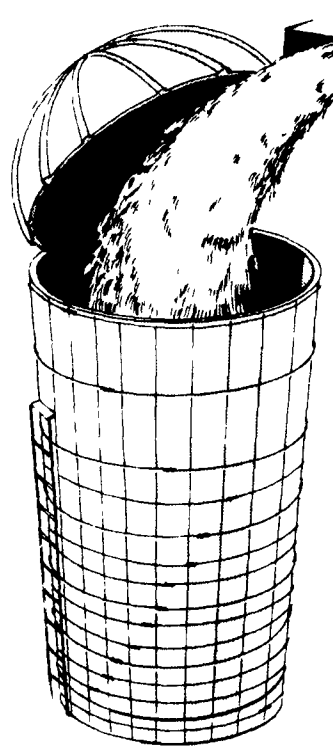
It takes performance to tame today's tough forage jobs:



YOU & VAN DALE.

Forage season — the time of year when you've got one eye on the weather and the other on your crop. Time everything just right and it'll mean dollars in your pocket later on.

The payoff comes at feeding time, and that's when you can count on Van Dale to deliver quality forage to your herd. Van Dale equipment performs when you need it to...Van Dale silo unloaders that really dig in, even at −20°F; Van Dale conveyors and feeders that let you feed more animals in less time; and Van Dale mixers that can actually improve the value of your ration.
